

I can honestly say I have not watched any sports in the last three weeks. Why? Well:

- 1) There are no live sports on.
- 2) I don't like to watch re-runs in sports.

I already know how it turns out and I have other things to do. Even if I know the score in real time, I won't watch the game. Once I know who wins, I'm done watching it.

The Transcendent & Holy God is a little different than me. He occupies all of time – above and beyond the scope of time actually – and when He speaks of the future it is always in the language of it has already happened (from His eternal perspective on High – eternally past and future).

Knowing how our lives play out in His plan is never boring to Him. It is exciting – albeit sometimes frustrating because of our demeanor – and Jesus exclaims that He looks forward to being reunited with His redeemed even though He already knows we will be together again (John 17).

God has a perfect eternal plan and He is excited to see its progress. The quarantine is part of that plan. He knows what's going to happen through it, because all that happens leads to His glory. My question is, is how you are living through it bringing Him glory? Or do you just see it as a frustration, like watching old sports re-runs?
